Sudden Death at Camrose

The residents of Camrose and vicinity had a sensation last week, when it was learned that a Galacian had died under rather peculiar circumstances. It appears three Galacians named paul Sternatck, J. Dregon and E. Ramonali gold mixed up in a drunking highly in the Arlington Holel, when one of the number knocked Sternatck down and kicked him. He was picked down and kicked him. He was picked one of the number knocked Sternastck down and kicked him. He was picked up and placed in an adjoining room, where he was later found with life extinct. It was feared that Sternster's death was caused by a wond received in the brawl, so an inquest that the sternster's death was caused by a wond received in the brawl, so an inquest of the control of the citizens who knew something about the affair The evidence was not sufficient to satisfy the jurcy, hence a post morten was ordered, and the jury adjourned until Tussday. Upon resuming business after the adjournment Dr. Lamb gave evidences that he had made a post mortem and could find nothing which would cause death.

The jury then retired and after a short deliberation brought in the following verdict: "That the said Paul Sternsatch, on the 12th days of Janus-Sternsatch and the 12th days of Janus-Sternsatch and the 12th days of Janus-Sternsatch and no marks of Alberts, was found dead, and that the valid Paul-Sternsatch had no marks of violence appearing on his body, and there is no eridence to show from what the said Paul Sternsatch died."

Deceased had a homestead seven miles from Camrose and was a married man with five children.
